■ Enrolling in the National Pension System

All people between the ages of 20 and 59 who have a certificate of residence in Japan—including non-Japanese residents—must join the National Pension System and pay its premiums. Paying your premiums for more than ten years will make you eligible to receive the National Pension when you reach the age of 65. Full or partial exemption may be available if you have difficulty paying National Pension system premiums. Please apply. The system also includes a “disability pension” that is paid when you are unable to work due to injury or illness, and a “survivor's pension” that is paid when a family member who had been working to support you dies. You must complete the National Pension enrollment procedure when you first arrive in Japan or leave your employer. Full or partial exemption may be available if you have difficulty paying National Pension system premiums. Please apply. Please visit Ota City's website if you have any questions.

■ Return of Medical Expenses after Loss of Eligibility for National Health Insurance

If you visited a medical institution using your insurance card for the Ota City National Health Insurance program after losing your program eligibility because you moved out of Ota City, joined another Japanese public health insurance program, your period of stay in Japan ended, or for any other reason, you must return the portion of your medical expenses that were paid for by Ota City. If you have joined another public health insurance scheme or moved out of Ota City, be sure to notify Ota City that you will leave its National Health Insurance program and return the insurance card that was issued to you.
